Job Description

Art Conservator (Paper)

John Jones

London, UK

£28,000-£30,000 pro rata dependant on experience

3 days per week with possibility of full time opportunity in future

3 month contract, with possibility of permanent position offered on completion

Our focus on quality continues to be the drive behind our success and expansion, most recently in conservation services. Our clients are drawn from across the fields of art and design. We are the preferred partners for key contemporary and international galleries, high profile artists, private and corporate collectors & major institutions. We also collaborate on a regular basis with Christie's, Sotheby's, and other leading auction houses.

John Jones is seeking an experienced conservator to undertake practical conservation of artworks on paper, mainly contemporary. The role will involve examinations, quotes, treatment, research, and documentation. The post holder will be confident to work independently, help maintain the studio and run it in the manager's absence. There is scope in the future for the role to involve collection management projects and brief talks on current projects for John Jones tours. Depending on projects and schedules, the post holder may be asked to oversee interns. Professional development will be encouraged.

Your degree in Conservation with an emphasis in Paper (or equivalent experience) will be supported by substantial experience and an advanced technical knowledge.
